About the event

Pharmacology Futures is a collaboration between the University of Edinburgh, the British Pharmacological Society (BPS) and the Royal Society of Edinburgh (RSE) and aims to explore the contribution pharmacology will make to therapeutics over the next 10 years. The conference will explore recent innovations in pharmacology and will conclude by looking ahead to the future of UK biomedical research.

This conference will form part of the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the Edinburgh Medical School in 2026 and will take place within the University of Edinburgh campus, at some of its most historic sites.

Why sponsor?

Sponsoring or exhibiting at the event gives your organisation the opportunity to show 150-200 researchers, academics and industry experts the innovations you have been developing and can offer for their projects.

More event details including the agenda can be found through the Pharmacology Futures webpage.

Packages are not limited to those detailed on the following page, there are other sponsorship opportunities such as a conference dinner. To explore what would work best for you, contact Chris Chisman on:
