

Have you recently completed a degree or PhD in pharmacology?

As a recent graduate, it can be overwhelming to think about your next steps and to identify the right path for you. Even if you know the direction you want to head in, you might need some support in finding helpful information or making connections with important contacts.

Whether you already know your next steps or need some help deciding, the British Pharmacological Society is here to guide and inspire you through the next stage of your journey.

Where will a career in pharmacology take you?

Looking to move forward in a research career?

- Interested in exploring jobs across the pharmaceutical industry?
- Considering a career outside of the lab?

Training in pharmacology is a great foundation for a wide range of careers. If you are thinking about where you want to take your career, visit bps.ac.uk/careers.

You can access lots of resources and information, and also read first-hand accounts of different chosen career paths.

Support to progress your career

The British Pharmacological Society is here to support you as you progress in your pharmacology career, wherever that may take you. We offer reduced membership rates for those within five years of finishing their degree. Some of the benefits of becoming a member of the Society include:

- Opportunities to network with employers
- Discounts to our meetings and training
- Access to our journals
- Access to awards, prizes, and grants

Find out more about the support available to you as a Society member at bps.ac.uk/membership.